Orange Wings Amazon
Jemima

Subspecies: Green and blue subspecies
Size: 10-12 cm
Other: 1-2 years

This species is CITES II listed due to threats from the pet trade.

Jemima is a very friendly parrot who likes to chatter away to people. She will whistle back to you, say hello and even sometimes say her own name!

But if she starts screeching or shouting out you please walk away.

She will think it's a good way to get attention and continue doing it.
Thank you.

Please do not feed Jemima or put your fingers through the cage. She will bite and can easily break your finger!

Do not touch

Do not touch the aircraft and exhibits in the American Air Museum to not damage them.

Help us preserve the aircraft and exhibits in the American Air Museum by not touching them.

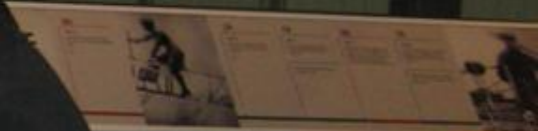

When the air in a balloon is heated, it becomes lighter than the air around it. This causes the balloon to rise. A balloon that rises is called a hot-air balloon.

How does a hot air balloon work?
Air is made up of many tiny particles. When these particles are heated they become charged with energy. The particles move around more and bounce off each other. Because of this the gaps between particles get bigger. The air now has fewer particles taking up the same space so below. We say the air has become less dense and lighter.

What to know first!
When the air inside the balloon is heated, the particles stop moving. They become more packed together and it takes the balloon a longer time to rise. The balloon is no longer heated, and it falls.

Flying the Flag

The RAF uses the Red Cross flag for their aircrew flying support aircraft. These are used to help the public. They also use the flag to help the public and to help the public to help the public.
